

Mother love is remarkable! A young mother, carrying her baby boy, was making her way across some hills in South Wales when she was overtaken by a blizzard. She was frozen to death. Searchers found her hunched over her child having covered him in her outer warm garments, and as they unwrapped the bundle to their surprise found the child alive, and well! That boy was David Lloyd George, and he became prime minister of Great Britain, and one of that nations finest statesmen. Out of death came significant life. This is the foundation for all effective parenting! Take the example of Canadian geese. They fiercely defend their nest from predators like foxes and racoons. In an unseasonable snow fall geese have been found dead under a metre of snow still loyally sitting on their eggs. Selfless living pours self (including love) into another, and selfish living withholds that life and love! Being a parent, especially a mother, is our greatest privilege in life, and today mothers everywhere deserve our warmest thanks — like Jesus Christ they give their life for their kids! ~ David Rodway
